The MODERATE MAN

- ▶ A moderate man is temperate in his thinking . . . in his actions . . . in his convictions . . . he is moderate in all things.
- ▶ He has the respect of his family, his friends and his associates. He is, in short, a contented and a happy man.
- ▶ And when an occasion calls for the use of whisky, he is a man who knows, as The House of Seagram has so frequently pointed out, that he has an obligation to himself, and to his community . . . to drink moderately or not at all.

The Unhorsed Galahad of Montreal

By STUART KEATE

ONE DAY, not long ago, a little Renault automobile rolled up to the heights of Jacques Cartier bridge across the St. Lawrence at Montreal. The French-Canadian policeman extended a casual hand for the ticket. Then he did a considerable "double take." When he recognized this lean, intense, suspended man behind the wheel he stopped, passed courtesy of the Arrest for a moment, and then chuckled.

"Ah, White—this is not a very big car you are driving these days."

Police Ray (The "P" Plante) grinned. "Not you, not you" he replied. Then, as he pulled away from the vehicle, he shook his head and the window went dark. "It may be small, but it is completely honest."

A few weeks before Fox Plante had been a familiar figure on the bridge, driving to his suburban Stouffville beach house in a large Ford Ranch, complete with police arms. The city of Montreal had taken away the Ranch. It had also taken away the revenue Fox Plante drew in a double licence and his badge of authority as deputy director of police in charge of security and patrol. It had suspended his 1120-week salary. Driving home in a borrowed car, he was the most unemployed man in Canada.

So a brief but stormy 18 months, Fox Plante had seen a second experience as a hard hitting and uncompromising agent of the law enforcement system who, until Canada's largest city. He had shaken off a backbreaking and grinding routine that, during the war years, did an estimated $1 million business each week. The RCMP had sought him out to keep them on his methods. He had obtained a reputation as the "unhorsed" "Big Plante." Heavy duty, whose personal life he never boasted and on lucky sometimes topped $25,000 a day. The campaign started

Are We Growing More Cruel To Our Children?

By SIDNEY KATZ

IN KAPNEKE, Ont., on Wednesday, March 25, 1980, the woman living on the last street in the tiny hamlet of Whitton made a hurried call to the police.

"The kid next door is being beaten to death," she shouted into the telephone. "Please come quickly."

Policemen rushed there only to find the apartment, almost empty. Mrs. Whitton and the same six-year-old boy, now dead, lived in the four-year-old Whitton. Whitton and Whitton, now a tiny village, is a remote hamlet on the edge of the city of Toronto. The boy was killed by a neighbor's son, a 12-year-old boy, who had been told by his mother to "beat the kid next door to death." The boy was found lying on the ground, his head broken, his body covered in blood.

The child had probably been living in hell for several months. "Observed County Judge W. B. Lewis, in sentencing the boy to jail for attempted murder, said: 'It is a sad case of a child who...'

In Montreal, last New Year's Eve, neighbors heard gunshots making running to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Prud'homme, a young couple in their late 20s. They entered and found two children, 10-year-old and 12-year-old, lying dead. The 10-year-old was shot in the head. The 12-year-old was shot in the chest. The police found the children lying on the floor, their bodies covered in blood.

At the hospital, the doctor found that both youngsters had been comatose for several hours. The doctor said: "It is a sad case of a child who..."

BATTLEFIELD OF PEACE

A "Caterpillar" Diesel Tractor pulls a John Deere combine in the fields of Eastern Washington.

This season has a deeper meaning than ever before in the history of man-kind. Here is the answer to a whole world's hunger. Here is the battle that has to be won—for peace.

Wheat is already ripening in the Southwest. Soon the heads will be heavy and golden all the way from Kansas north to Alberta. Soon the huge combines will be rolling across wheatfield so it is at its peak. That requires dependable tractors that will keep going day after day—year after year.

This year, as in every past, "Caterpillar" tractors that won't bog down in wet fields will furnish the pulling power. And "Caterpillar" Diesel Tractors have harvested millions upon millions of bushels of so valuable food with their mighty engines and
